

ROGORA KHART

Rogora Khart – An explosion of Black Sea Punk !

With its bizarre brand of frenzied fun, Rogora Khart's break-neck live set is infectious, theatrical – and ever-so-slightly disturbing...

Inspired by Eastern European music, Rogora Khart draws on art-deco cabaret, burlesque, gypsy and punk, to present a show that's gripping audiences and headlining gigs across Wales – from burlesque to bellydance events, from festivals to clubs.

Brought together by the compelling desire to entertain, this unique Newport-based five-piece, accompanied by the enthralling dancing of the hypnotic Siluria, delights with its music and theatre...and entices the audience into its joyous world of fun and excitement.

Rogora Khart sings in Georgian and English, about forgetting your worries and celebrating life; the eternal search for the magical Shupka; Man's quest for uplifting art; and the simple joy of eating chips after drinking beer, when you don't have much money.

An amazing band, you've got to see them !

post from brassgoggles forum: Steam Punk

"(Also, Rogora Khart were possibly one of the best bands I've ever seen live. And I was privileged enough to see the Who when John Entwistle was amongst the living.)"

DJ Andy Roberts of Radio Cardiff

"I had been thinking of giving up promotion but basically I decided I had to build a night around them and give them the audience they deserved. The resulting gig went down a storm!"
